- Right to access (Article 15 of the GDPR): You have the right to receive feedback on whether your personal data is being processed and, if the data is being processed, to receive a copy of the personal data that is being processed, and to be informed of the essential circumstances of the data processing.
- Right to rectification (Article 16 of the GDPR): You may request the correction, without undue delay, of personal data that is inaccurately managed by the Controller, and that any personal information that is incomplete is completed. In such a case, the Controller verifies the accuracy of the data and corrects the data accordingly.

In such a case, the Data Controller will review your request and, depending on this, will terminate further processing of the data.
- Right to erasure (Article 17 of the GDPR): You may initiate the deletion of your personal data by the Controller if:

- Right to restriction of processing (Article 18 of the GDPR): You have the right to request restricted processing of your data by the Controller if any of the following conditions are met:

 - You have objected to the processing, in which case the limitation applies to the period until it is determined whether the Controller's legitimate reasons take precedence over the Data Subject's legitimate reasons,
 - the processing of the data concerned is unlawful, or the purpose of the processing has ceased to exist, but for some reason you object to the deletion of the data;
 - the Controller no longer needs your data, but you need it to make, enforce and defend a legal claim;

In this case, your data will be blocked, after which any data processing operation (except storage) may be performed only with your consent. The restriction may be lifted if the use of the data concerned is necessary for the submission, enforcement, protection or defence of a legal claim, or for the protection of the rights of others or in the public interest of the EU / a Member State. You will always be informed about the lifting of the restriction. Your request for restriction will be forwarded by the Controller to the persons and organisations to whom the data have been communicated and which are accessible in a reasonable way and as expected.
